GLOBE TROTTING

Husband-and-wife duo Laurie and JP Farber, owners of eco-boutique Elsie Green, sift through flea markets in France at least four times a year for vintage textiles, linens, and stoneware. Housed inside The Barlow, a newly opened food and shopping emporium in Sebastopol (approximately 55 miles north of San Francisco), the light-filled store is dotted with new and collected items spanning salvaged ladders, vintage copper baking molds, breadboards procured from Lyon, glass oil bottles, floral still life paintings, brass candlesticks, bamboo daybeds, and select pieces from Belgium and Morocco. elsiegreen.com

RESERVATION REQUEST

Designed by Steven Harris Architects and Lalire March Architects, Freds at Barneys New York, San Francisco comes with the building's original glass windows, a 36-foot-long faceted mirror, and upholstered swivel barstools. Situated on the top floor, overlooking Union Square, the 2,400-square-foot eatery offers an Italian- and American-inspired menu, created by executive chef Mark Strausman of Freds Restaurant Barneys New York. House favorites range from chopped chicken salad, with Bibb lettuce, avocado, string beans, and Dijon mustard balsamic dressing, to margherita pizzas topped with tomato, basil, and mozzarella. barneys.com/restaurants/freds

RETRO REVIVAL

Originally built in 1886 as the family home for prominent Calistoga merchant James H. Francis, The Francis House, a meticulously restored five-bedroom inn, is the newest place to stay in wine country. Formerly the Calistoga Hospital for 45 years, the sparkling property—appointed with tufted headboards, European oak floors, custom brass luggage racks, and an infrared sauna and salt room—is now listed on the National Register of Historic Places, thanks to the preservation efforts of proprietors Dina Dyer, an interior designer, and her husband, Richard, a former real estate developer and contractor. Guest perks include a complimentary daily breakfast, a wine tasting hour on weekends featuring local wineries, and electric car charging stations. thefranchishouse.com
